MITHOFF HEALTHCARE CONSULTING announces relationship with PROMODEL

Columbus, Ohio- September 24, 2009- Business partners Carol Cosler, MBA and Janet Beck, RN, BSN, MBA are charting a new direction for their healthcare consulting firm by announcing it is working with ProModel Corporation to help meet the needs of their healthcare organizations for enhanced operations and optimization of process.

ProModel's solutions augment Mithoff Consulting's capabilities of analyzing and implementing process changes whether it's in an existing facility or new construction project. Through this strategic alliance with ProModel, Mithoff Consulting strengthens its consultative services in working with their clients by now being able to test the impact of any number of proposed changes (staffing, process, facility layout, patient flow) before ever introducing them into the clinical setting.

ProModel healthcare simulation solutions offer hospitals, health systems and clinics the unique ability to perform accurate, fast predictive analysis of the specific and systemic impacts of operational, process, and layout changes BEFORE decisions are made. ProModel's healthcare specific simulation solutions offer a level of detail, accuracy, and quantitative analysis that is simply unavailable through spreadsheets, flowcharts, traditional consulting methodologies, and other simulation software.

"We're excited to add this relationship to our team" said Carol Cosler. "We believe there is an incredible opportunity to better assist our healthcare organizations as they evaluate their current operational situations and plan for and execute their revised contemporized approaches to the delivery of quality healthcare." Janet Beck added, "Working with Promodel will extend our reach and capabilities as they bring specific and unique sets of expertise that complement and expand upon our own talents. We are pleased to have this opportunity to create this unique partnership positioning us to address the changing needs of our healthcare clients."

"Getting to know Carol and Janet, I have learned of their success in developing and delivering great services to their healthcare customers" said Jim Cain, Senior Account Manager at Promodel continued saying, "We look forward to working with Mithoff leveraging the great synergy between our companies offering respective services for our clients as we expand and grow our business."
